AMY & STEVEN

the great island getaway

AMY GLICK & STEVEN JESSOP
AUGUST 5, 2006
RAROTONGAN BEACH RESORT, COOK ISLANDS

Meet me in Maimi Trendy South Beach was the place where fate would bring together Amy, 30, and Steve, 26. Amy and her soon-to-be bridesmaid Kimberly were fumbling with their camera when Aussie Steve swooped in to assist the American gals. Parting ways was rough so Amy made the journey to Oz to visit her love. Then in February 2006, Steve asked her to be his bride. "We were standing in the water at Noosa and he got down on one knee and proposed in the water. He had the ring tied onto a string in his board shorts pocket. Very risky! We danced around in the water together."

A Cook Islands wedding With family in both the US and Australia, the couple wanted chose neutral ground for their 14 guests. "We wanted to have it somewhere where neither of us had been and was off the beaten path for both of our families," says Amy. They enlisted the planner at the Rarotongan Beach Resort & Spa to arrange everything from the flowers to the photographer.

Thanks for the bomboniere The couple gave guests Mikasa crystal wine stoppers shaped as sailboats as bomboniere. "The day before the wedding we hired a boat for our guests and went out snorkelling and had a barbeque on an island so we thought boat wine stoppers would be memorable," says Amy.

Fancy Tahiti The groom planned the couple's seven-night honeymoon in French Polynesia at the Moorea Pearl Resort and the InterContinental Tahiti.
